School Prevention Programming– Weird Series:

Weird Series is an elementary program that consists of a three-part book series that includes true to life stories of bullying told from all perspectives: the role of the target, the bystander, and the person doing the bullying. The program contains stories, handouts, and interactive activities. To schedule this program at your school or organization, please contact our Education Department at (570)-784-6632.

Medical Advocacy Program:

The Women's Center's Medical Advocacy Program provides services for victims of domestic and/or sexual violence, prevention activities, advocacy, and leadership to the health care community, aimed at eradicating violence and sexual abuse. Our Medical Advocacy Program currently works in conjunction with Geisinger Medical Center, Geisinger Bloomsburg Hospital, and other local healthcare facilities. To learn more about this program visit <https://www.thewomenscenterinc.org/medical-advocacy-program>
